

WHAT DOES YOUR

Sitting Style

SAY ABOUT YOU?

The way you sit says a lot about you. Defining what it says isn't always easy—particularly in this age of multitasking, where we're all about getting things done. Even when we don't look like we are. At KI, we're doing our part to satisfy this need to "do" and "be" with the MyWay™ Lounge Seating collection. Comfortable and engaging pieces that let you sit and do things your way. So, what does your sitting style say about you?

SASQUAT

You are the elusive and mysterious type. Documented sightings of you actually sitting back in your chair are rare, but they have been known to occur. Despite your apparent lack of commitment to your chair, you manage to get things done in it. Now could you please sit back? You're making us nervous.

CONTRARIAN

You march to the beat of your own drum. If everyone's drinking beer, you order wine. If they're sitting, you find a way to do it in your own unique way. And while your nonconformity is admirable, it's also a bit annoying—you'd make a better door than a window.

BACKSEAT DRIVER

You are often the center of attention. Wherever you're sitting, you appear to be holding court—always perched a few notches above your subjects. And why not? After all, you're the go-to source for office gossip, fantasy football tips, and home remodeling advice. You're also really short.

TWISTED SITTER

You are an incredibly flexible person. And while your twisted sitting style is a source of mild amusement to your fellow loungers, what's really impressive is your ability to remain pretty darn productive in some very unconventional-looking positions.

THE TURNCOAT

You come across as pretty self-important. Or are you just being polite by turning around to take that call from your mom? Either way, your habit of unexpectedly showing your back to your lounge mates mid-conversation is a bit rude. You just say "back atcha."

LOW RIDER

When it comes to crafting your public image, you're definitely in the driver's seat. You see yourself as a cool character—ready to shoot the breeze with whomever happens to sit next to you. Everyone else sees you as that annoying guy who looks like he's driving a '66 Impala. Ride on!

COMA CHAMELEON

You and your chair are one. You are extremely adept at blending in with your environment, whether it's the lobby or the library. To some, it may appear you're snoozing, but they don't know you're just getting ready... picking the perfect time to make your move—just not quite yet.

FLYING COACH

Your sitting style may seem cramped. The fact is, you're just a person who takes things seriously—whether it's waiting for the dentist or watching a reality show in the lounge. Now, put your seatback and tray table in an upright position and go get us both a cold one while we wait.

RIDING THE PINES

You are the strong, silent type—often taking a backseat to your fellow lounge-sitting peers. Certainly no introvert, you're always ready to join in the conversation when your number is called. Until then, you are content just watching the world go by. Hey, at least you're not the water boy.

GOING COMMANDER

You are the undisputed master of your domain—even if your domain happens to be the podiatrist's waiting room. Your commanding presence gives you rightful ownership of every TV remote in the room, as well as every magazine. Warp speed ahead.

DRIVING THE CLOWN CAR

While your compact sitting style may appear ridiculous, you are anything but. In fact, you are the most together person in the lounge, able to juggle multiple mobile devices while sipping a double decaf espresso skinny latte. Now that's funny.

YOGA TO BE KIDDING ME

You are a real go-getter. You've got something to do every minute of every day. You can even manage to be productive while you wait for your kale-flavored chai. In short, you're simply not the type to sit on your hands. Your head, maybe.
